

LEADERS OF UNION TO FACE JURY ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Cloak and Skirt Makers' Chiefs' Trial Is Set for Next Monday.

CONFESSION ACCUSES.

"Dopey Benny" Fein Alleges
They Slew Leibovitz in Their Headquarters.

The trial for murder in the first degree of seven leaders of the Cloak and Skirt Makers' Union today was set for next Monday by Justice Tompkins in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court. The men were indicted by the Grand Jury last June on the confession of Benjamin ("Dopey Benny") Fein.

District Attorney Perkins urged the necessity of a speedy trial and Justice Tompkins agreed with him. Eight men in all were indicted, but on motion of Abraham Levy, their attorney, the indictment against Samuel Holtzwas dismissed on the ground that sufficient evidence had not been adduced before the Grand Jury to warrant it. The seven men who will have to stand trial are:

Max Hirschman, Morris Hirschman, Solomon Metz, Julius Wolff, Max Singer, Isidore Aschitz and Abraham Weidinger.

The confession of "Dopey Benny" created a sensation when it was made public. The former gang leader declared he had been employed by the union for a number of years and that at other times he was in the employ of the employers to protect their property and their non-union men. He gave in detail a number of beatings which had been inflicted on non-union men and told of the alleged murder of Samuel Leibovitz, for which the seven men are to be tried.

Leibovitz, according to the story told by "Dopey Benny," was a member of the Cloak and Skirt Makers' Union when the union decided a strike in the summer of 1910. He had a wife and family, and declaring that he must give his family the necessities of life, went to Hunter, N. Y., to accept a job in a non-union factory. The union learned of this and, Fein swore, a committee was sent to Hunter to lure him to the headquarters of the union at No. 42 East Fourth Street, Manhattan. At the headquarters he was set upon with iron bars and beaten to death, the confession charged.

A special panel of 100 taxmen has been ordered, from which a jury to try the indicted men will be drawn.

SLAVER'S HEAVY TERM.

From Ten to Twenty Years for Green, Found Guilty in Brooklyn.

Albert Green, twenty-one, a Coney Island photographer, who has been living with his mother at No. 136 Amboy Street, Brooklyn, and who was convicted recently on a white slavery charge, was sentenced today by Judge Dike in the Brooklyn County Court to serve from ten to twenty years in Sing Sing at hard labor.

After complimenting Assistant District Attorney Albert J. Conway on his prosecution of the case, Judge Dike, in words of a nervous breakdown, said to the prisoner:

"We know your crime here as white slavery. It is an imported crime, abhorrent to America. You and your kind are a moral ulcer in any decent community and this sentence is not alone a punishment for you but a warning to your kind throughout the great city of New York, you who live without shame and without mercy."

CONEY MARDI GRAS WEEK.

Festivities Open To-Night With

"Flight of Time."

Half a million ticklers and forty tons of confetti will help make everybody happy when the annual Coney Island Mardi Gras opens in the customary "riot of fun" and "blaze of glory" tonight. The police estimate that 300,000 persons will throng the streets the first night.

A nightly parade of twenty gorgeous floats will make the symbolism of the spectacle "The Flight of Time" impossible to go unrecognized.

Robber Slain in Fight Over Spoils.

SILOUX CITY, Ia., Sept. 12.—As a sequel to the daylight robbery of the Farmers and Merchants' Bank Saturday, one member of the gang that held up the bank, Fritz, was slain today.

Fritz was killed early today during a pistol duel after a quarrel over the division of the spoils.

OLD ENGLISH STYLE

At Grocers and Delicatessen Stores. 10c

Made by E. Pritchard, 331 Spring St., N. Y.

The May Manton Fashions

Mothers who are planning the school wardrobes for the autumn will find this frock a most satisfactory one. It gives just a suggestion of the Norfolk idea that is so fashionable; it is exceedingly simple and at the same time extremely practical. The plaited skirt is joined to an underlining and the blouse is quite separate. It is distinctly novel, for the yoke extends over the skirt in a most becoming and attractive way. In the picture the blouse is made of plain serge, while the skirt and trimming are of plaid, but conceals one of the most beautiful materials for school wear and plaid gingham are charming, and just this effect could be copied in that material most successfully. There is a plaid cotton eponge that is charming too for school wear, while the model also could be made up in plain linen or plain plique, and either one of these could be used for the entire frock with only the underlining of a thinner material. All blue or all brown serge or serge in a dark rich red could be used attractively with the collar and cuffs of plaid or of taffeta or satin to give a little relief, and if liked, the belt can match the trimming. Instead of the blouse, later, serge would be handsome with bits of velvet used for the trimmings, and undoubtedly serge is one of the best liked materials that can be found. Dark red is in to the very end of the autumn and winter. It is always handsome and apt to be becoming to the little girl. The new shades are most attractive; while they are dark and serviceable, they are by no means dull.

For the 8-year size will be needed for the blouse, 3 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2½ yards 26 inches 44; for the skirt and trimming will be required 2 yards of material 27 inches wide, 1½ yards 26 inches 44. The skirt No. 3751 is cut in sizes from 6 to 16 years.
